

Peter Kintzer, DVM, DACVIM

Dr. Kintzer received his DVM from Cornell University. Following an internship at the Animal Medical Center and an internal medicine residency at Tufts University School of Veterinary Medicine, he was on staff at Tufts for 5 years. For next several years, he was the internist at Boston Road Animal Hospital. He is currently with Bay State Veterinary Emergency Services and Ocean State Veterinary Specialists. He has written many articles and chapters on canine and feline endocrinology and lectured nationally and internationally on endocrine disorders. Dr. Kintzer is a diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine and a past president of the Society for Comparative Endocrinology.

VVTA Presentations:

- Update: Treatments and Diagnostics for Feline Hyperthyroidism and Canine Hypothyroidism
- Nursing Care and treatment for Diabetes Mellitus and Diabetic Ketoacidosis
- Challenges in the Diagnosis and Treatment of Addison's Disease
- Diagnostics and nursing care strategies for complex internal medicine/endocrinology patients